

His name was Beyioku Asungaga topele lorun. He came from Origbo with his wife Sayoade. Origbo was made up seven villages (Edun-Abon, etc.)

He left Origbo for Ile-ife because his children were dying soon after their naming ceremony. In Ile-Ife, he practised Ifa divination. At the time Ologbenla was the Chief Commander of Ooni's army and Beyioku was taken on as his native doctor, therefore continuing his trade.

During the war between Ile-Ife and Ondo, the warriors made a settlement near Ondo village so they could rest between battles, this settlement was christened Okeigbo (now Okeigbo).

On getting to Okeigbo, Asungaga's children started surviving. He then decided to settle down there.

Sayoade who was Granddad Olowu's junior sister trained the most senior of the Olowu's because his mother died while he was a baby. Philip Odugbemi and J.J. Olowu were agemates and breastfed together.

On the death of Beyioku, his wife Sayoade was married to his younger brother and they gave birth to:
